The figure of the amber keeper is deeply rooted in mythological traditions across various cultures, particularly in regions bordering the Baltic Sea, where amber has been cherished since prehistoric times. In Baltic mythology, the amber keeper often manifests as a guardian spirit or deity associated with the Baltic Sea and the treasures it bestows. The myth suggests that amber, often called "the tears of the gods" or "sweat of the sun," is preserved by divine custodians who protect it from theft and decay.

In Greek mythology, amber was linked to the myth of Phaethon, the son of Helios, who lost control of his chariot, causing the sun to scorch the earth and creating tears that fell into the sea, forming amber. While not explicitly called "keepers," these myths emphasize the preciousness and divine association of amber, implying the existence of custodians or protectors of this treasure.

Historical Significance of Amber

Historically, amber has served as a valuable commodity for thousands of years, prized for its beauty, supposed healing properties, and mystical qualities. Archaeological finds indicate that amber was traded across Europe, Asia, and Africa, with some of the earliest evidence dating back to the Neolithic era.

Ancient cultures, such as the Egyptians, Romans, and Vikings, revered amber not only as an ornamental material but also as a talisman that warded off evil spirits and provided protection. The "amber keeper" in these contexts often took the form of priests, shamans, or artisans tasked with safeguarding amber artifacts or ensuring their proper use in rituals.
